Berkeley California: A flat field full of little houses sloping up to the top of a small tree mountain with a WPA amphitheatron of rose bushes cut out of the middle: Berkeley California is rarely cold or hot. I like waking up early in the morning and seeing the sun or rain or fog spice liquid ant toe on orange, grapefruit: lime: palm trees out my window. I like being able to drive ten minutes from my little forest of 90 tiny trees on wire tables in back of my house up over a small mountain park to a big lake where I can rent a motorboat for $5 an hour and putt putt around looking at cattle grazing on grass and people from all over the world laughing, catching, cleaning and cooking fish. I like a town that small dull clean snot minds move out of: That vast wild dirty minds move in to: That is a fog squashed thin line big sky stretched triangle: Square: Line: Rectangle Inca tapestreed array of world genes: With legs: All others have roots: Jews and Californians have feet: Berkeley has a gigantic Chinese Mall: Exotic food laden Super market, restaurants and all: Streets of Indian sari and $10,000 dollar gold necklace: A little Arab butcher shop: Goat necks: Sweetbreads: Lambs to barbecue: I like a town that has real yogurt
